

Perimeter Security does the job...

The Frank O'Neill Group markets perimeter security as the ultimate in security measures and as a major defence against intrusion and protecting you, your family and your employees from possible home invasion or theft.

The most recent example of the value of perimeter security systems is seen here when a potential intruder attempts to cross the border of Managing Director, Guy O'Neill's residence at 2am on Friday morning the 29th May 2009.

Note... no neighbours are disturbed in this attempted intrusion as siren noise is kept to a single chirp to notify the intruder + the activation of security lighting not only confirming to the intruder of his presence being detected, but to provide lighting for the security camera and immediate visual for Mr O'Neill and his family from the wall mounted monitor in the kitchen.

In this instant the system worked perfectly, preventing what may have been an attempt on the parked vehicle in the drive or a further intrusion into the premises or that of the neighbours by fence jumping.
